CURRICULUM VITAE

I was born in Sweden in 1953, left for Asia in 1975 and spent 1975-79 travelling in the Asia-Pacific region (the Middle East, the Indian subcontinent, Southeast Asia, Hongkong, Japan, Australia and New Zealand). I have been living permanently in Thailand since December 1979, working as a journalist and author since 1980. I was a free-lance journalist until March 1988, when I was employed by the Far Eastern Economic Review of Hong Kong (for which I began writing on a free-lance basis in 1982) as its Burma correspondent. Later, I also covered a range of other issues for the Review such as organized crime, ethnic and political insurgencies, and regional security. After the Review was closed down in October 2004, I began working as a senior analyst for Jane's Information Group in the USA. From 1995 to 2014 I was also the East Asia correspondent for the Swedish daily Svenska Dagbladet, and from 1995 to 2003 the Southeast Asia correspondent for Politiken of Denmark. I am now a full-time correspondent for the Hong Kong-based news agency Asia Pacific Media Services and I write regularly for Asia Times (<http://www.atimes.com/>), The Irrawaddy (<https://www.irrawaddy.com/>) and other, mainly local websites and publications. In addition to my media work, I served as President of the Foreign Correspondents Club of Thailand (FCCT) from January 1993 to January 1995.
